Technical Document

Chips: How to add 125ml element to stock profiles.

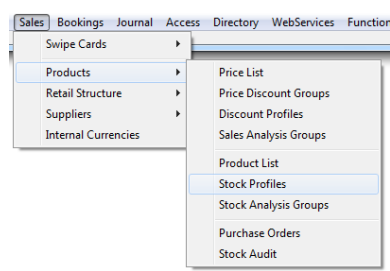

Document Info

This document outlines how to add a 125ml element to existing wine stock profiles. This is due to UK law changes due to come in to effect on 01/10/10.

This document makes the following assumptions:
 The user is familiar with Microsoft Windows XP Pro and above and M H Systems Ltd Chips Suite and terminologies/ conventions that are used in the system from a user point of view.

Adding a quantity element to an existing stock profile.

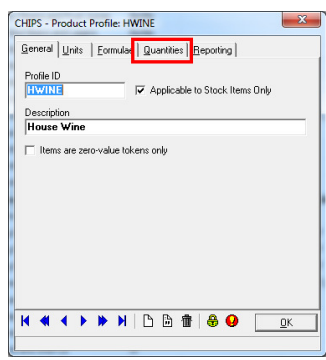

With Chips open.
 Go to: Sales > Products > Stock Profiles

Find your "Wine" profile in the list and double click on it (if you have more than one wine profile, each profile will need adjusting).

FWINE70	Fortified Wines (70cl)	ltr	25ml
HWINE	House Wine	ltr	175ml Glass, 250ml €
JOHNYS	Johny's Special		no Coke, with Coke

Now click on the "Quantities" tab.

In the list of quantities right click and select "New Record".

Give the new record the next "ID" number in the list (in this case 3) and then give the item a description in the "Receipt Name" field. Then enter the "Quantity Factor"- this will be specific to how you system is configured (see the table below).

Profile configuration	Correct quantity factor
If you are using a "unit" stock type as the master value, as below: 	Use the value below:
If you are using a "fluid" stock type as a master value, as below: 	Use the value below:

Adding a price to your new element

With Chips open:

Go to: Sales > Products > Price list.

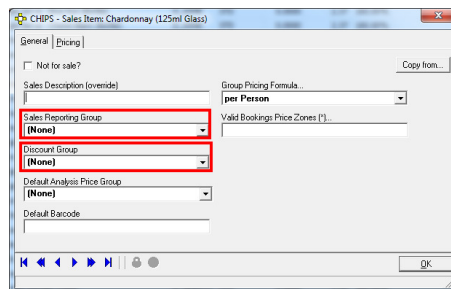

Locate the wine products that have had the 125ml element added to them (example below).

1.512.0.1	Chardonnay (175ml Glass)	D_WINE	STD	0.0000	2.50	100.00%
1.512.0.2	Chardonnay (250ml Glass)	D_WINE	STD	0.0000	3.50	100.00%
1.512.0.3	Chardonnay (125ml Glass)			0.0000

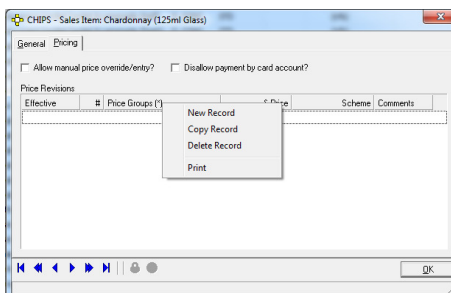

You will need to add a reporting group and a discount group to the products.

Double click on the product record and on the window that opens, adjust the areas highlighted below.

Now go to the "Pricing" tab.

Right click in the white space and select "new record".
